THE HALL OF FAME.

During a period of twelve years on the bench Judge Dunn of Pottsville, Pa., was never once reversed by a higher court.

W. N. McMillan, son of the late United States senator from Michigan, has set up farming in the wilds of British America, where he owns 20,000 acres.

The Duke of Wellington has many treasures of historic value, chief of them the service of plate which Portugal presented to his famous ancestor. It is said to be worth £200,000.

Judge Field, aged ninety-four, of Athol, Mass., thirty years on the bench, has never missed a day's sitting. Being indisposed recently, he heard a murder case lying in bed on his back.

Edwin R. Briggs of West Bethel, Me., is still engaged in the same work he has pursued since his boyhood. Probably Mr. Briggs has made and edited more puzzles than any other man in the state.

Hon. Percival Maitland Laurence, supreme justice of Cape Colony, South Africa, is said to bear a striking resemblance to King Edward. He is a famous jurist and has been the supreme justice of Cape Colony for twenty-five years.

When in the lottery for seats in the house of representatives at the opening session J. Adam Bede of Minnesota, known as the wit of the house, drew No. 23, there was a storm of applause that indicated the members as well as the galleries liked the joke.

While General Grosvenor passes out of the congressional limelight, Ohio still has in its delegation two veteran white haired statesmen who have passed seventy years of age—General J. Warren Kelfer, ex-speaker of the house of representatives, and General Israel H. Sherwood, who represented Ohio thirty-four years ago.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

There is a great fancy for the military sleeve not only for coats, but for really elaborate costumes.

The small fur toques are conspicuous among the new small hats, and new variations on the marmoset idea and the Henry IV. shapes are also much in evidence.

Bands of dyed cluny lace or embroidered flit net made up over white and trimmed in self color satin make comparatively inexpensive and smart blouses, repeating the colors of the frocks with which they are to be worn.

A sleeve idea which is finding favor with Parisiennes is the use of an undersleeve in contrasting color. By this is not meant merely the sheer white undersleeve with which we have long been familiar, but an undersleeve in satin, velvet, silk—what one will—of relieving color, over which falls a loose or draped outer sleeve in the materials or trimmings of the frock.—New York Sun.

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

Great Britain's golfers use half a million balls each week.

The Lusitania and the Mauretania have been happily renamed by the people in England the Lucy and the Mary.

Every regiment in the British army is provided with a banner called "colors," bearing the regimental badge and inscribed with the names of battles in which the regiment has taken part.

A thirty foot long whale was recently found on the beach about a mile north of Sealby Nab, Scarborough. It was headless and had probably been killed in collision with some large ship and then washed ashore.

Prosecuted at Sleaford petty sessions for not sending his child to school, Josiah Elkington, laborer, stated that he earned $3.75 a week and had "only fourteen children to keep out of it." The case was dismissed on payment of costs.

EDITORIAL FLINGS.

Temperance is going some when even New York gets scared.—Washington Times.

It is proposed to hold a reunion of the automobile survivors of 1907. Are there enough left?—New York American.

Luther Burbank has evolved a thornless cactus. That fellow could hand the public a sweet lemon.—Manchester Union.

There are 8,000,000 telephone girls in the world. The duties of 6,788,949 consist in telling you that the line is busy.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

According to the new directory for that city, Chicago has pushed Berlin out of fourth place in the list of the world's great cities. Why didn't Berlin publish a city directory also?—Kansas City Star.
